HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENCK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the land is a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated; the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

RIP VAN WINKLE, M. D.

An After-Dinner Prescription.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Taken by the Massachusetts Medical Society, at their Meeting held May 25, 1870.

CANTO FIRST.

Old Rip Van Winkle had a grandson, Rip,
Of the paternal block a genuine chip;
A lazy, sleepy, curious kind of chap;
He, like his grandsire, took a mighty nap,
Whereof the story I propose to tell
In two brief cantos, if you listen well.

The times were hard when Rip to manhood grew;
They always will be when there's work to do;
He tried at farming—found it rather slow—
And then at teaching—what he didn't know;
Then took to hanging round the tavern bars,
To frequent toddies and long-nine cigars,
Till Dame Van Winkle, out of patience, vexed
With preaching homilies, having for their text
A mop, a broomstick—aught that might avail
To point a moral or adorn a tale,
Exclaimed—"I have it! Now, then, Mr. V.!
He's good for something—make him an M. D.!"

The die was cast; the youngster was content;
They packed his shirts and stockings, and he went.
How hard he studied it were vain to tell—
He drowsed through Wistar, nodded over Bell,
Slept sound with Cooper, snored aloud on Good;
Heard heaps of lectures—doubtless understood—
A constant listener, for he did not fail
To carve his name on every bench and rail.

Months grew to years; at last he counted three,
And Rip Van Winkle found himself M. D.
Illustrious title! in a gilded frame;
He set the sheepskin with his Latin name,
Ripum Van Winklum, quem—we scimus—know
Idoneum esse—to do so and so.

He hired an office; soon its walls displayed
His new diploma and stock in trade,
A mighty arsenal to subdue disease
Of various names, whereof I mention these;
Lancets and bougies, great and little squirt,
Rhubarb and Senna, Snakeroot, Thoroughwort,
Ant. Tart., Vin. Colch., Pil. Cochiæ and Black Drop,
Tinctures of Opium, Gentian, Henbane, Hop,
Pulv. Ipecacuanhæ, which for lack
Of breath to utter men call Ipecac,
Camphor and Kino, Turpentine, Tolu,
Cubebs, "Copeevey," Vitriol—white and blue,
Fennel and Flaxseed, Slippery Elm and Squill,
And roots of Sassafras and "Sassaf'rill,"
Brandy for colics—Pinkroot, death on worms—
Valerian, calmer of hysteric squirms,
Muck, Assafœtida, the resinous gum
Named from its odor—well, it does smell some—
Jalap, that works not wisely, but too well,
Ten pounds of bark and six of Calomel.

For outward griefs he had an ample store,
Some twenty jars and gallipots, or more;
Ceratum simplex—housewives oft compile
The same at home, and call it "wax and ile,"
Unguentum Resinonum—change its name,
The "drawing salve" of many an ancient dame;
Argenti Nitras, also, "Spanish flies"
Whose virtue makes the water bladder rise—
(Some say that spread upon a toper's skin
They draw no water, only rum or gin)—
Leeches, sweet vermin! don't they charm the sick?
And sticking-plaster—how it hates to stick!
Emp'astrum Ferri—ditto Picis, Pitch:
Washes and Powders, Brimstone for the—which
Scabies or Psora, is thy chosen name
Since Hahnemann's goose quill scratched thee into flame,
Proved thee the source of every nameless ill,
Whose sole specific is a moonshine pill,
Till saucy science, with a quiet grin,
Held up the Acarus, crawling on a pin.
—Mountains have labored and have brought forth mice,
The Dutchman's theory hatched a brood of—twice
I've well nigh said them—words unfitting quite
For these fair precincts and for ears polite.

The surest foot may chance at last to slip,
And so at length it proved with Doctor Rip.
One full-sized bottle stood upon the shelf
Which held the medicine that he took himself;
Whate'er the reason, it must be confessed
He filled that bottle oftener than the rest;
What drug it held I don't presume to know—
The gilded label said "Elixir Pro."

One day the doctor found the bottle full,
And, being thirsty, took a vigorous pull,
Put back the "Elixir" where 'twas always found,
And had old Dobbin saddled and brought round.
—You know those old-time rhubarb-colored bags
That carried doctors and their saddle-bags;
Sagacious beasts! they stopped at every place
Where blinds were shut—knew every patient's case—
Looked up and thought—the baby's in a fit—
That wont last long—he'll soon be through with it;
But shook their heads before the knockered door
Where some old lady told the story o'er
Whose endless stream of tribulation flows
For gastric griefs and peristaltic woes.

What Jack-o'-lantern led him from his way,
And where it led him it were hard to say;
Enough, that wandering many a mile
Through paths the mountain sheep trod single file,
O'ercome by feelings such as patients know
Who dose too freely with "Elixir Pro."
He tumbl—dismounted, slightly in a heap,
And lay, promiscuous, lapped in balmy sleep.

Night followed night, and day succeeded day,
But snoring still the slumbering doctor lay.
Poor Dobbin, starving, thought upon his stall,
And straggled homeward, saddle-bags and all;
The village people hunted all around,
But Rip was missing—never could be found.
"Drownded," they guessed; for more than half a year
The pouts and eels did taste uncommon queer;
Some said of apple-brandy—other some
Found a strong flavor of New England rum.

—Why can't a fellow hear the fine things said
About a fellow when a fellow's dead?
The best of doctors—so the press declared—
A public blessing while his life was spared,
True to his country, bounteous to the poor,
In all things temperate, sober, just and pure;
The best of husbands! echoed Mrs. Van,
And set her cap to catch another man.

—So ends this Canto—if it's quantum suff.,
We'll just stop here and say we've had enough,
And leave poor Rip to sleep for thirty years;
I grind the organ if you lend your ears
To hear my second Canto, after that
We'll send around the monkey with the hat.

CANTO SECOND.

So thirty years had past—but not a word
In all that time of Rip was ever heard;
The world wagged on—it never does go back—
The widow Van was now the widow Mac—
France was an empire—Andrew J. was dead,
And Abraham L. was reigning in his stead.
Four murderous years had passed in savage strife,
Yet still the rebel held his bloody knife.
—At last one morning—who forgets the day
When the black cloud of war dissolved away?
The joyous tidings spread o'er land and sea,
Rebellion done for! Grant has captured Lee!
Up every flagstaff sprang the Stars and Stripes—
Out rushed the Extras, wild with mammoth types,
Down went the laborer's hod, the schoolboy's book—
"Hooraw!" he cried—"the rebel army's took!"
Ah! what a time! the folks all mad with joy;
Each fond, pale mother thinking of her boy;
Old gray-haired fathers meeting—Have you heard?
And then a choke—and not another word;
Sisters all smiling—maidens, not less dear;
In trembling poise between a smile and tear;
Poor Bridget thinking how she'll stuff the plums
In that big cake for Johnny when he comes;
Cripples afoot—rheumatics on the jump,
Old girls so loving they could hug the pump,
Guns going bang! from every fort and ship—
They banged so loud at last they wakened Rip.
I spare the picture, how a man appears
Who's been asleep a score or two of years;
You all have seen it to perfection done.
By Joe Van Wink—I mean Rip Jefferson,
Well, so it was—old Rip at last came back,
Claimed his old wife—the present widow Mac—
Had his old sign regilded, and began
To practice Physic on the same old plan.

Some weeks went by—it was not long to wait—
And "please to call" grew frequent on the slate,
He had, in fact, an ancient mildewed air,
A long gray beard, a plenteous lack of hair—
The musty look that always recommends
Your good old doctor to his ailing friends.
Talk of your science! after all is said,
There's nothing like a bare and shiny head,
Age lends the graces that are sure to please—
Folks want their doctors mouldy, like their cheese.

So Rip began to look at people's tongues
And thump their briskets (called it "sound their lungs,")
Brushed up his knowledge smartly as he could,
Read in old Cullen and in Doctor Good,
The town was healthy; for a month or two
He gave the sexton little work to do.

About the time when dog-day heats begin,
Measles and mumps and mulligrubs set in;
With autumn evenings dysentery came,
And dusky typhoid lit his smouldering flame;
The blacksmith ailed—the carpenter was down,
And half the children sickened in the town.
The sexton's face grew shorter than before—
The sexton's wife a brand new bonnet wore—
Things looked quite serious—Earth has got a grip
On old and young, in spite of Doctor Rip.

And now the Squire was taken with a chill—
Wife gave "hot drops"—at night an Indian pill;
Next morning, feverish—bedtime getting worse,
Out of his head—began to rave and curse;
The Doctor sent for—double quick he came;
Ant. Tart. gran. duo. and repeat the same
If no et cetera. Third day—nothing new;
Percussed his thorax—set him cussing, too—
Lung-fever threatening—something of the sort—
Out with the lancet—let him blood—a quart
Ten leeches next—then blisters to his side;
Ten grains of calomel—just then he died.

The Deacon next required the Doctor's care—
Took cold by sitting in a draught of air—
Pains in the back, but what the matter is
Not quite so clear—wife calls it "rheumatiz"
Rubs back with flannel—gives him something hot—
"Ah!" says the Deacon, "that goes nigh the spot."
Next day a rigor—run, my little man,
And say the Deacon sends for Doctor Van.
The Doctor came—percussion, as before,
Thumping and banging till his ribs were sore—
"Right side up the flattest"—then more vigorous raps,
Fever—that's certain—pleurisy, perhaps,
A quart of blood will ease the pain, no doubt.
Ten leeches next will help to suck it out,
Then clap a blister on the painful part—
But first two grains of Antimonium Tart.
Last, with a dose of cleansing calomel
Unload the portal system—that sounds well!

But when the self-same remedies were tried,
As all the village knew, the Squire had died;
The neighbors—"this will never do,
He's killed the Squire—he'll kill the Deacon too,"
—Now, when a doctor's patients are perplexed,
A consultation comes in order next—
You know what that is? In a certain place
Meet certain doctors to discuss a case
And other matters, such as weather, crops;
Potatoes, pumpkins, lager beer and hops.

For what's the use? There's little to be said,
Nine times in ten your man's as good as dead—
At best a talk (the secret to disclose)
Where three men guess and sometimes one man knows.

The counsel summoned came without delay—
Young Doctor Green and shrewd old Doctor Gray—
They heard the story—"Bleed!" says Doctor Green
"That's downright murder! cut his throat you mean!
Leeches! the reptiles! Why for pity's sake,
Not try an adder or a rattlesnake?
Blisters! why bless you, they're against the law—
It's rank assault and battery if they draw!
Tartrate of Antimony? shade of Luke,
Stomachs turn pale at thought of such rebuke!
The portal system! What's the man about?
Unload your nonsense! Calomel's played out!
You've been asleep—you'd better sleep away
Till some one calls you—"

"Stop!" says Doctor Gray—
"The story is you slept for thirty years;
With Brother Green, I own that it appears
You must have slumbered most amazing sound;
But sleep once more till thirty years come round,
You'll find the lancet in its honored place,
Leeches and blisters rescued from disgrace,
Your drugs redeemed from fashion's passing scorn,
And counted safe to give to babes unborn."

Poor sleepy Rip, M. M. S. S., M. D.,
A puzzled, serious, saddened man was he;
Home from the Deacon's house he plodded slow
And filled one bumber of "Elixir Pro."
"Good-bye," he faltered, "Mrs. Van, my dear!
I'm going to sleep, but wake me once a year;
I don't like bleaching in the frost and dew,
I'll take the barn, if all the same to you.
Just once a year—remember! no mistake!
Cry, 'Rip Van Winkle, time for you to wake!'
Watch for the week in May when laylocks blow,
For then the Doctors meet, and I must go."

Just once a year the Doctor's worthy dame
Goes to the barn and shouts her husband's name,
"Come, Rip Van Winkle!" (giving him a shake)
"Rip! Rip Van Winkle! time for you to wake!
Laylocks in blossom! 'tis the month of May—
The doctor's meeting is this blessed day,
And come what will, you know I heard you swear
You'd never miss it, but be always there!"

And so it is, as every year comes round,
Old Rip Van Winkle here is always found.
You'll quickly know him by his mildewed air,
The hayseed sprinkled through his scanty hair,
The lichens growing on his rusty suit—
I've seen a toadstool sprouting on his boot—
Who says I lie? Does any man presume—
Toadstool? No matter, call it a mushroom.
Where is his seat? He moves it every year;
But look, you'll find him—he is always here,
Perhaps you'll track him by a whiff you know—
A certain flavor of "Elixir Pro."

Now, then, I give you—as you seem to think
We can drink healths without a drop to drink—
Health to the mighty sleeper—long live he!
Our brother Rip, M. M. S. S., M. D.!

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Life is like a race where some succeed,
While others are beginning;
'Tis luck in some, in others speed,
That gives an early winning;
But if you chance to fall behind,
Ne'er slacken your endeavor;
Remember, though you are surpassed,
"'Tis better late than never!"

And if you keep ahead, 'tis well,
But never trip your neighbor;
'Tis noble when you can excel
By honest, patient labor:
But if you are outstripped at last,
Press on as bold as ever;
Remember, though you are surpassed,
"'Tis better late than never!"

Ne'er labor for an idle boast,
Or victory o'er another;
But while you strive your utmost,
Deal fairly with a brother;
Whate'er your station, do your best,
And hold your purpose ever;
And if you fail to do the rest,
"'Tis better late than never!"

Choose well the path in which you run,
Succeed by noble daring;
Then though the last, when once 'tis won,
Your crown is worth the wearing;
Then never fret if left behind,
Nor slacken your endeavor,
But ever keep this truth in mind,
"'Tis better late than never!"

Let your wit be your friend, your mind your companion, and your tongue your servant.

A nu milch cow is stepnother tew every man's baby.

John Quill's Farm Experience.

A GOOD STORY.

If you take my advice you won't practice agriculture for a living. This thing of being a farmer is all very nice for you to read about, you know, but if you get in the business you will wish you had been born in an orphan asylum, and died in your second summer.

I don't want to obtrude my private affairs on the public, but I'm like an awful example in a temperance lecture, you understand, and if I can save any other men from my fate, why I am going to do it. My advice to all men is, be an honorable organ grinder or an ex-President, or a gorilla, or go into the cold victual business, or peddle matches, but don't agriculture.

I bought a small farm in New Jersey, and became a husbandman. I stocked the estate with all the apparatus, and as I didn't know any more about farming than a goose does about four dollars a week, I engaged a man named Stoddles as my constitutional advisor. Stoddles professed to be up to all the herbolic dodges, but I must confess that after eighteen months I consider Stoddles a fraud. As an absolute failure he is a perfect success.

In the first place there was not a drop of water on the premises, and Stoddles said he would advise me as a friend, to dig a well. So I got a lot of tools and begun. We hadn't dug more than six feet before we struck solid rock. I wanted to slant her off to one side, but Stoddles observed that was the rock on which the State of old New Jersey was founded, and we would have to blast her.

So we blasted her and got one of the finest earthquakes you ever saw in your born days. It shook down 2 chimneys and lightning rod, and Stoddles was struck on the head with a falling of a brick.

We dug in that well for a week, and we struck everything but water. I could have got coal, oil, gold, marble and marl or anything else out of that excavation, but I was looking after cold water just then, and I would not want to touch anything else. Stoddles took me aside at the end of the week and confidently advised me to stick at it; 'for,' said he, 'you know if you can't get water at first, if you keep on you're bound to strike water on the outside, and then you have a sure thing of it: you have got it all in your own hands, you understand.'

Stoddles put me in mind of a man who grew carrots so long that the Chinese pulled them through by the roots from the opposide of the globe before he got a chance at them.

My oxen were singular oxen. They both seemed to have St. Vitus' dance in their tails, they could never keep them still.

It annoyed me, for I was afraid every minute they would work loose, and no decent farmer, you know, wants to be wandering around with bob tailed oxen. So I tied a stone to the end of each tail to keep them down, and this worked well enough until one morning when the flies were bad, and the near ox got his brush up, stone and all, and liked to have brained my oldest boy. I've got the tail tied to his off hind leg now, and if he wants to switch it, he's got to lift himself off the ground. And it's the same way with the hens. I bought a lot of hens on purpose to lay eggs, but they are not on that lay. Every one I've got seems to feel that she is out of her normal sphere if she is not setting.—That old speckled hen of mine has been thrown up in the air, soused in cold water, put under a barrel, and had all the inducements held out to her to knock too, but she has a good deal of firmness of character, and she is now trying to hatch a door knob and grindstone handle, and I think she'll succeed.

I planted some onions some time ago, and I waited all summer to see them bear. But they didn't. After they had gone to seed, Mr. Stoddles said that onions grew under ground and I ought to have them dug out.

Next year I planted some tomatoes, and as soon as they come I began digging for them. Mr. Stoddles said that I had ruined all the plants, for tomatoes grow on the top. Why don't they have all things alike, anyhow? What's the use of one growing in the ground and the other out of it? Why there ain't any. I planted potatoes last year, but they didn't grow. "Never you mind," said Mr. Stoddles, "them is all right." But I was naturally impatient, and so after waiting seven months, I went out and dug for one and there it was, in the very spot where I put it, looking so familiar and natural that I sat down and cried like a baby.

Then I dug them all up; they had kept first rate. There don't seem to be much profit in it. Mr. Stoddles remarked that they were not a prolific variety, and I don't think they were myself.

Don't ever keep bees. I have some, but Stoddles accidentally sat on one, one day, and he made such a howl about it that the whole hive swarmed on me and scared me out of my senses. I like a sociable bee, but there is such a thing as overdoing cordiality.

How are you on parsnips? I advise you not to cultivate them. A man gave me some seeds, which he said were a good variety. I planted one to try it. It was a double rooted kind—straddled out like a fork in the road. When it got ripe I thought I would take it up, but it wouldn't come. I tackled that parsnip with a monkey wrench, a crowbar and a cross cut saw, but it never moved an inch.—Stoddles said it was on account of them roots, and I had better have them extracted with gas. He said he thought "very like them roots ran around the globe, like the equator, and clinched on the other side."

So we got a yoke of oxen, and hitched them on, and the old vegetable came along with half a ton of rock in his grip, and then it was so tough that you couldn't make an impression on it with a cold chisel.

I suppose you are not bothered any with crows. Well, I am. The crow is a vivacious and sagacious bird. Our crows combined the acute intelligence of human and condor. I sowed a patch of corn last spring, and went to tea at night feeling sweetly and calmly happy.

The crows held caucus that evening, and fell in for grub on my corn. There wasn't a grain left in the morning.

I sowed some more and harrowed it in; you know what a harrow is—an exaggerated curry-comb. Well, strange to relate, the crows missed just seven grains of that corn, and precisely that number of stalks came up, and probably I should have got in a crop of two or three ears to the acre, if the cows hadn't broke the fence, and ate it before it came to any thing. Mr. Stoddles says corn is a poor crop. I should think it was.

As I couldn't get water from the well, I concluded to take it from the river. So I laid down a mile and a half of pipe and set a hydraulic ram to force the water along. It worked first rate, but the trouble is, I can't stop the ram. After I got enough of water in the tank, the ram kept on pumping and the water overflowed and drenched the house, and flooded the kitchen, and finally arranged itself into a first class cascade out of the garrett window. It is going yet, and I sleep in the barn. If you hear of anybody advertising for a magnificent water-fall, let me know, will you?

And then as to horses. I know that man whose horse went so fast that when he stopped him suddenly it turned the hair the wrong way, but that is not the forte of my horse. My horse's weakness is backing. As a backer I never saw his equal. He would back from here to Kansas if you'd let him. He seems to think that is the way nature intended him to go. I always hitch him up with his head over the dash board of the wagon, and he trots along first rate.—That is, he used to. For last Wednesday I tied him to a tree, and he got one of his fits on him, and backed clear out his hide, which he left hitched to the tree while he pranced his old carcass over the asparagus bed, and died. But as he had the glanders, and worried with the bots, and bothered with the blind staggers, and besides having the heaves, and being sprung in the knees, it was just as well. Mr. Stoddles says that is the best day's job he ever did. If you know a man who has a taste for farming—some regular feeble minded, glibbering imbecile or an idiot who wants to buy a place recommend him to me, will you? I want to sell out cheap. I'd rather have a comfortable situation in State Prison than to be gardening here in this kind of style.

The Shadow of Life.

We have rarely met with anything more beautiful than the following, which we find in an old New York Mirror:

"All that live must die;
Passing through nature to eternity."

Men seldom think of the great event of death until the dark shadow falls across their own path, hiding forever from their eyes the faces of the loved ones, whose living smile was the sunlight of their existence. Death is the great antagonism of life, and the cold thought of the tomb is the skeleton in all our feasts.

We do not want to go through the dark valley, although its passage may lead to Paradise; and, with Charles Lamb, we do not wish to lie down in the mouldy grave, even with kings and princes for our bed-fellows.

But the fiat of nature is inexorable There is no appeal or repeal from the great law that dooms us all to the dust. We flourish and fade like the leaves of the forest, and the frailest flowers, that blooms and withers in a day, has not a frailer hold on life than the mightiest monarch that has ever shook the earth by his footsteps. Generations of men appear and vanish like the grass, and the countless multitude that swarms the world to-day, will to-morrow disappear like footprints on the shore:

"Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
Each trace will vanish from the sand."

In the beautiful drama of Ion, the instinct of immortality, so eloquently uttered by the death devoted Greek, finds a deep response in every thoughtful soul. It is nature's prophesy of life to come. When about to yield his young existence as a sacrifice to fate, his betrothed Clemanthe asks if they shall not meet again; to which he replies: "I have asked that dreadful question of the bills that look eternal; of the flowing streams that flow forever; of the stars, among whose fields my raised spirit hath walked in glory. All were dumb. But while I gaze upon thy living face, I feel there's something in that love which mantles through its beauty that cannot wholly perish. We shall meet again, Clemanthe."

LOVE OF NATURE.—He who has a love of nature can never be alone. In the shell he picks up on the shore, in the leaf fading at his feet, in the grain of sand, and in the morning dew, he sees enough to employ his mind for hours. Such a mind is never idle—He studies the works of his Maker, which he sees all around him, and finds a pleasure of which the devotee of sin and folly can from no conception.

Payment of Pensions.

Among the most important of the acts passed by Congress at the late session, was that providing for the payment of pensions quarterly to pensioners and for the regulation of fees to be paid to claim agents for the prosecution of claims for pensions and bounty land. Said act become a law July 8, 1870, and prescribes in substance as follows:—

SEC. 1. Pension agents shall prepare and transmit within 15 days preceding the 4th of March, June, September and December, in each year, vouchers for quarterly payments to pensioners direct, who, on or after said 4th day of March, may execute a return and return the said vouchers and none others to the said pension agents.

SEC. 2. Upon the receipt of such vouchers, properly executed, and the establishment of identity of the pensioners entitled to the pension, the pension agent shall immediately forward by mail to the said pensioner direct, and no other person, a check payable solely to the order of said pensioner, except when the pnesioner is required to appear personally and receive the pension.

SEC. 3. No pension shall under any circumstances be paid to any one but the pensioner entitled thereto, except in case of pensioners legally disabled, when payments may be made to guardians, and in case of pensioners resident abroad, when payment may be made as provided under previous acts.

SEC. 4. Pension agents shall receive, for all services rendered to pensioners, including postage, 30 cents, payable by the United States; and no more shall be received by them, under the penalty of $500.

SEC 5. The Secretary of the Interior shall provide blank vouchers, to be used as above stated, and regulations thereof.

SEC. 6 Pension agents and their authorized clerks shall take and certify affidavits of all pensioners who may appear before them for that purpose, and give the check for the pension to the pensioner personally; and for taking any such affidavit falsely and corruptly, the affiant shall be deemed guilty of perjury, the penalty being imprisonment for five years or less, and a fine not exceeding $1000.

SEC. 7. The fee of an agent or attorney for the prosecution of a claim for pension or bounty-money shall not exceed $25. The agent or attorney must file, without cost to the claimant, with the Commissioner of Pensions, duplicate articles of agreement, duly attested, setting forth the fee agreed upon. When no such agreement is filed or approved by the Commissioner, the fee shall be $10 and no more.

SEC. 8. For a contract for demand or receipt or retention of any compensation greater than above stated, the penalty shall be a fine of $500 or less, or imprisonment for five years or less or for both.

SEC. 9. The Commissioner of Pensions shall forward to the Pension Agents the certificates of pension, one of the articles of agreement, if approved by him, and directions as to the payment of the fees.

SEC. 10. The Pensions agents shall deduct from the amount of fee if any, and forward the same, less 30 cents, as directed by the Commissioner.

THAT WONDERFUL PRAYER.—Which? Why that one your mother taught you. Did you ever think, short though it be, how much there is in it? Like a diamond in the crown of a queen, it unites a thousand sparkling gems in one.

It teaches all of us, every one of us, to look to God as our parent—"Our Father."

It prompts us to raise our thoughts and desires above the earth—"Who art in Heaven."

It tells us we must reverence our Heavenly Father—"Hallowed be Thy name."

It breathes a missionary spirit—"Thy kingdom come."

And a submissive, obedient spirit—"Thy will be done on earth as it in Heaven."

And a dependent, trusting spirit—"Give us this day our daily bread."

And a forgiving spirit—"Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us".

And a cautious spirit—"Deliver us from evil."

And last of all an adorning spirit—"For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Now is it not both a wonderful and a beautiful prayer? Jesus, our dear Saviour, taught it, and who could better tell us how to pray to His Father and our Father, to His God and our God?

'Here, Alfred, is an apple; divide it politely with your little sister.' 'How shall I divide it politely, mamma?' 'Give the largest part to the other person, my child.' Alfred handed the apple to his little sister, saying, 'Here, sis, you divide it yourself.'

Two young ladies and an Irishman were converging on age, when one of them put the home question, 'Which of us do you think is the older, Mr. H.?' 'Sure replied the gallant Hibernian, 'you both look younger than each other."

'I am sure you live in paradise, my dear fellow, since your marriage,' was the would-be complimentary remark of a friend. The reply was 'No; in paradise there is no such thing as marriage.

If a man haint got a well balanced head, I like tew see him part hiz hair in the middle.

THE CONVENTION AND THE TICKET.—We have delayed our paper to give the action of the Convention. The Convention was noisy—the nominations as a whole, good—but not any better than last year, when a part of the ticket was defeated by the ring controlling the convention. The ticket shall receive our support—it was the choice of the Convention, and as such it is our choice.

Proceedings of the Convention.

The Huntingdon County Republican Convention assembled in the Court House, according to previous announcement, and was fully represented by delegates from every district. Gen. Frank H. Lane, of Shirleysburg, who had been previously agreed upon by caucuses of the two wings of the party, was chosen Temporary President, and Wm. J. Hampson, of Three Springs boro., and James McIlroy, of Porter tp., Secretaries.

DELEGATES.

Alexandria—H. McPherran, D S Henderson
Birmingham—T. S. McCahan, Jessie Beigle

Lower West—Jacob H Hamer, B. K Neff.

The credentials of delegates were then received, after which a motion was made that the votes for candidates be taken viva voce, instead of by the usual mode of marking, which was not adopted. The vote stood 31 for, and 42 against.

Mr. Lane was then made Permanent President of the Convention, by acclamation.

Privilege was granted Mr. David Etnier, of Mill Creek, to read a paper, which embodied a protest against placing in nomination any candidate who had been identified with the faction that combined to defeat the regularly nominated ticket last fall, and was signed by eighteen delegates.

After some animated remarks by several delegates, the Protest was withdrawn.

CONGRESS.

Hon. Daniel J. Morrell, of Cambria county, was then nominated for Congress by acclamation, and empowered to choose his own conferees.

A motion to elect three Senatorial conferees was lost.

The motion to vote by marking was reconsidered, and the Convention resolved to vote viva voce for candidates, with the following results:

STATE SENATE.

Henry S. Wharton, of Huntingdon,	51
David Blair, "	10
S. Miles Green, of Porter twp.,	19

Mr. Wharton was declared the choice of the Convention.

A resolution was introduced and adopted, instructing the Senatorial and Legislative candidates to oppose the passage of a bill to appropriate moneys out of the Sinking Fund of the State for certain railroad purposes.

All the legislative candidates were pledged to support the ticket.

ASSEMBLY.

David Etnier, of Mt. Union,	42
George Guyer, of Warriorsmark,	17
John Huyett, of Porter,	21

Mr. Etnier was declared elected.

ASSOCIATE JUDGE.

AUDITOR.

Samuel Beigle, Morris,	25
Levi Clabaugh, Warriorsmark,	6
Henry Neff, West,	41

Mr. Neff's nomination was declared unanimous.

J. Sylvanus Blair having received a majority of votes for Chairman of Co. Committee was declared elected for the ensuing year. The delegates, on motion, were authorized to choose members to compose the Committee.

Resolutions were offered and adopted, when the Convention adjourned sine die.

[The resolutions are not in our possession to appear this week; they will be published in our next issue.]

THERE appears to be a deathly bitterness between the orders of the Orange and the Green, existing in New York city, which only needs the public appearance of one or the other society, under their respective colors, to break forth into deadly violence. On Friday last, the Orangemen were to have a parade, but fortunately they did not. Several thousand men left their work, and took up their positions along the probable line of march of the Orangeman, armed with pickaxes, spades and other implements. And all this scene to be re-enacted annually on the 12th of July in a country three thousand miles from the place where the battle of the Boyne was fought, two hundred years ago. We think as this is a land for the oppressed that both Orangemen and Ribbonmen should bury their animosity in the waters of the Atlantic, and come to this country ready and willing to abide by its laws. We hope the laws will be enforced against the first offenders, and that the peace and safety of American citizens will be maintained.

THE New York Tribune puts the decreased public debt, under Grant's administration, in bold-faced figures as follows:

Public debt, decrease for July,	$17,034,123 74
Public debt, decrease since March, 1870,	69,004,001 17
Public debt, decrease during Grant's Administration	156,138,784 01
Average monthly decrease for 1869	7,261,231 90
Average monthly decrease for 1870	13,800,800 23

THE State debt as well as the National, is becoming rapidly less under Republican rule. The Commissioners of the State Sinking Fund have just announced a further reduction, since November 30th, 1869, of $1,420,610.62.

ENGLAND, it is thought, cannot keep out of the war, and the warlike preparations she is making, give a touch of surety to the belief. She is reshipping home all the arms sent to Canada to defend the Dominion against the Fenian raids. We can wait with patience the hour when she will decide for war, and when that decision once is made, then will come the "tug of war," for Russia, Austria, and many of the other kingdoms, will then bid a truce to all neutrality.

Gen. Walker, superintendent of the Census, proposes to give with the returns of 1870 the population of States, counties, cities, &c., of each decade from 1790 to the present time.—This will make the new Census tables especially interesting and valuable, as the early census reports are almost out of print.

A MAN named John Real was hung in New York city on Friday last for the murder of a police officer on the 23d of July, 1868. Real asserted that he was doomed to the gallows because he did not belong to the political ring in power, which, if truthful, throws some new light on the manner in which the laws are enforced in that city

PENSIONS OF 1812.—There are now 2,423 soldiers of 1812 and widows of soldiers of 1812, in Pennsylvania, receiving pensions from the State under the act of 1868—at least there are that many names on the pension books in the Auditor General's office, but two or three hundred of these old people have died during the past year.

UNDER the new grading of post offices Pennsylvania has thirteen first-class offices with salaries over $3000 per annum, and thirty-one second class with salaries over $2000. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are the only offices having the highest salary allowed, $4000 per annum. Huntingdon office has a salary of $3100.

PRESIDENT GRANT's opinion of the war in Europe has been elicited. At first he thought the war would be short—now he thinks it will be long and that every power in Europe will get into it. He thinks Bayonne will be the Fredericksburg of the war, and may be, the Black Forest will be the Wilderness.

AN extra session of Congress will not be called by President Grant. Although Congress did give our shipping interests the go-by, yet the President thinks that as that is the only question to be considered, it would not be politic to convene Congress.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE.— Attorney General Akerman has sent copies of the act to enforce the right of citizens of the United States to vote, to all the United States Attorneys, Marshals and Clerks of Courts. Several copies [illegible] of these officers.

Trial of Mowers and Reapers at the Agricultural College, Pa.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, August 4, 1870.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE GLOBE:—To impart additional interest to "The Harvest Home" instituted last year, an opportunity was afforded to manufacturers and agents to test the relative merits of their Mowing and Reaping Machines. The trial of Mowers to commence at 2 o'clock, P. M. on the 27th—of Reapers at 10 o'clock, A. M., on the 28th July, 1870.

The trial of Mowers was witnessed by four or five hundred, the trial of Reapers by fifteen hundred to two thousand of the citizens of the State, most of whom seemed much interested. On the 27th, after a plot had been assigned to each machine and two or three of the machines had opened their respective plots by cutting a swarth to and fro, the committee, the exhibitors and audience were all driven by a heavy storm of rain and thunder from the ground to the house and barn of the experimental farm. On the conclusion of the storm after the lapse of about an hour, all returned to the ground and the trial was resumed and concluded under circumstances admirably calculated to test the merits and defects of the several machines. The ground assigned for the trial was upon that portion of the experimental farm allotted to the experimental plots, but not yet appropriated in the rotation of crops impressed upon it in any specific tests. It was covered by a third crop of timothy and clover in the proportion of three-fourths timothy to one-fourth clover. The clover had died and the second crop of clover had started to grow; beside this, after the mowing last year there had been a vigorous growth of timothy which had died during the winter and which after the rain formed a material to clog and choke, difficult even for good machines to overcome. The plots for the trial of the Mowers were sixteen rods in length by three rods in width. The plots for the Reapers were forty-two rods in length by three rods in width. Both the oats and timothy were very heavy and in many places fallen and tangled. We tried to preserve a portion of our latest wheat but it ripened ten days too soon for the exhibition. I must here add that the President and Trustees, impressed with the extreme difficulty in the present state of excellence of many of our best machines, to avoid injustice in awards, inclined strongly to the opinion that the committee selected with great care should regulate and control the trial but make no award, allowing the large and intelligent audience convened from every section of the State to form their own judgment upon the relative merits of the machines. This suggestion, however, met with the disapproval of every exhibitor, who with confidence in the peculiar merits of his machine, demanded not only the appointment of the committee but an award of merit.

I am happy to enclose for information of the readers of your valuable journal a copy of the report of the Committee whose laborious painstaking and ability was only excelled by their modesty.

THOMAS H. BURROWES.

To Thomas H. Burrowes, President, and Professor of Agriculture and ex-officio a member of the Board of Trustees of Agricultural College of Pennsylvania:

The undersigned, George W. McDowell, of Clinton county, Samuel McKean, of Centre county, S. H. Graham, of Washington county, George Y. McKee, of Allegheny county, and R. R Bryan, of Huntingdon, Committee appointed by the Trustees at the instance and request of the exhibitors to award upon the relative merits of the several Mowing and Reaping Machines entered for competition at the Harvest Home 27th and 28th July, 1870, most respectfully report:

That the Committee after two days spent in the trial and examination of the machines had only time prior to their separation to exchange opinions and arrive at general conclusions.—They therefore authorized their chairman, R. R. Bryan, to report the results appending the names of the committee which he is pleased to do as follows:

Of the eight machines presented as Mowers, two, to wit, the Kirby and the Champion, were single mowers and of these two the Champion was considered the best. The remaining six, to wit, the Excelsior, the Keystone, the World, the Hubbard, the Dodge, and the Ohio Harvester, were combined machines, and as such we considered the Hubbard the best mower of the whole eight machines on the ground. It is proper to say that this particular Hubbard machine is the property of the Central Experimental Farm connected with the College—has been run during this season and was on this occasion driven by the agent of the Hubbard, J. R. Alexander.

The same machines were entered for the Reaping contest, excepting the two single mowers had on this trial their combined machines which arrived too late for the mowing contest on the preceding day. Three of them, to wit, the Excelsior, the Keystone and the world, were operated as Droppers, and as in our experience many farmers prefer the Dropper on account of its simplicity of mechanism, we selected the Excelsior as the most satisfactory Dropper.

The Champion as a Self-Raker, in view of the superior arrangement of the reel-post and in other respects, was in the opinion of a majority of the Committee the best Self-Raker.

And as a machine best calculated to render satisfaction for all purposes of the farmer who only desires to invest in one—in view of simplicity of construction, of lightness of draft, and other important features, a majority agreed that the Excelsior was most desirable.

Want of time (rain having occurred both days) and the fact that no preparation had been made for a thorough formal exhibition, occasioned the omission of many tests and rules, which in a future exhibition it would be proper to supply; among which may be mentioned a rule that all machines exhibited shall be such as are made for sale, and not finished specially for such exhibitions. Sufficient time should also be taken to test each machine thoroughly and all persons except the committee and the exhibitors excluded from the immediate vicinity of the machines during such operations

If the committee have erred in any of their conclusions, due allowance should be made for adverse circumstances under which they labored.

Frank B. Iseet, exhibitor of the Dodge, and who was a former student of the College, had a Binding attachment of his own invention on the ground, which appeared simple in construction and likely to be easily managed and controlled, but want of time prevented the examination of many points of alleged excellence claimed by the exhibitors which commended themselves to the Committee. The machines all performed well and no farmer should hesitate about purchasing any of those exhibited; the mere fact of vicinity of the place of manufacture or storage, so as to readily obtain duplicate portions being sufficient to determine his choice.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

France and Prussia.

The New York Globe says, whatever the designs or imperiousness of Bismarck, it is evident the blame for the present European war must fall upon the shoulders of Napoleon. Already are his hands red with the blood of M. Provost Paradol. It is now believed that this eminent French Minister and liberal was made miserable by the part which he had been led to play by the Emperor in causing him to leave France at this important crisis, and sending him to the Great Republic to appear as a partisan of that personal government which he so heartily detested. The depression of mind which this caused led the brilliant Minister to take his life. Napoleon could better afford to lose a battle than to be the means of causing the death of such a man!

We are surprised that the Emperor of the French, in the face of all the world, still insists upon going to war "on a lie," as Senator Schurz forcibly puts it. The succession to the Spanish throne, is still held up the real object of the war. France demanded that Prince Leopold should withdraw from the Spanish throne, and to prevent a war, he did so, Spain accepting the withdrawal. But this did not satisfy France. Official advices from Berlin state that France demanded a pledge of Prussia that no German should ever ascend the Spanish throne; that a Hohenzollern prince should reside in Paris as a hostage; that a large sum of money should be deposited, to be forfeited if the pledge was ever broken, and that France should have the keeping of the Rhenish Provinces until the death of the last Prince of Hohenzollern. Such demands as these Prussia could not accept, and a declaration of war followed.

We claim that until Spain becomes a province of France, she has a right to choose her ruler wherever she can find him. As the Nation of this week says, in an able article on this question: "The reappearance of a Bonaparte on the throne of France was an express assertion and vindication on his part and on that of the nation of two doctrines—of which the attack they are now making on Prussia is an open repudiation—viz: that every nation has a right to choose anybody it pleases for sovereign, and that no choice it can make gives any other good reason for fear or complaint."—This preaching was frankly accepted by the other powers of Europe in '51. They did not proclaim war upon France while the head of a family which had been proscribed by the public law of Europe as dangerous to its peace put himself on the throne of France by a bloody revolution. If Europe permitted Napoleon to rule over France, what just cause of complaint can France have because a German prince is called to the Spanish throne? It is only by the suffrance of the great powers that Napoleon is permitted to rule at all—his divine right to do so is nowhere acknowledged. If France was satisfied with Napoleon, the rest of Europe did not complain. So if Spain was satisfied with Leopold, France had no reason to complain. The case of Maximillian in Mexico, which was so obnoxious to the United States, was not a parallel one. Maximillian was not the choice of the Mexican people. He was forced upon them by French bayonets. Mexico was a Republic, and Napoleon attempted to make a monarchy. Here he recognized no right save that of force, which is the power he falls back upon to compel Europe to acquiesce in his dmands. So we have at this late day what is ostensibly given out as a war of succession, in which the principal actor is elected dictator. Under these inconsistent and absurd pretensions, is it any wonder that we detest Napoleon, and pity the people which blindly follow the lead, while our sympathy goes out to Prussia? * * *

We love France none the less because she is trampled in the dust by Napoleon, but we cannot sympathize with any ruler who professes to go to war about so flimsy a matter as the succession to the Spanish throne. If Napoleon would not occupy a false position before the world, let him throw this false pretence aside and proclaim that the war is one of conquest, to enlarge the boundaries of France.

It is singular that Joseph Robarge brakeman, who was killed in the Michigan Central accident at Wayne the other week, had married the widow of his cousin, Moses Robarge, a fireman, who was killed on the same road a year or two ago. Thus the poor woman is a second time widowed by nearly the same terrible agency which deprived her of her first husband.

The North Carolina troubles continue, although dispatches from that State assert that there is no resistance to the authorities. In addition to the hanging up of Patton, it is stated that Kirk's militia have tied up several citizens by the thumbs, to make them confess themselves Ku-klux. Three companies of U. S. Troops from Fort Washington arrived at Raleigh on Sunday.

It has been ascertained that the person or persons who murdered Mr. Nathan, in New York, obtained $60,000 from the safe which Mr Nathan had [illegible] keeps the night before

IMPORTANT FROM EUROPE.

Fight at Weissenburg.

BERLIN, August 5.—The following dispatch has been received here from Neiderotterback, a small village on the Otter river, near Weissenburg, dated six o'clock, Thursday evening: "We have won a brilliant but bloody victory. The left wing was the attacking party, and consisted of the Fifth and Eleventh Prussian Corps, with the 2d Bavarian. The force carried by assault, under the eyes of the Prince Royal, the fortress of Weissenburg and the heights between Weissenburg and Gesburg."

Douay's division of Marshal McMahon's French corps was splendidly defeated, being driven from its camp.—Gen. Douay was killed, and five hundred prisoners were taken. None of them were wounded. Many "Turcos" were among the captured. The Prussian General Kirchback was slightly wounded. The Royal grenadiers and the fiftieth regiment of the line suffered heavy losses.

The Capture of Saarbruck.

LONDON, August 5.—A correspondent, endorsed by the Times as trustworthy and neutral, gives the following interesting details of the battle of Saarbruck: The French made some prisoners but captured no cannon.—They lost forty killed and sixty wounded. The French force in the battle was estimated at 30,000, and the Prussians at 6,000. The artillery won the fight. There was but little infantry and no cavalry engaged. Three companies of the Fortieth held their ground against the French until the latter force fully developed its strength. The small force of Prussians then retired.

Battle at Woerthe---The French Routed.

BERLIN, August 7.—Dispatches have been received in this city from the Crown Prince, Frederick William, of Prussia, giving an official report of the result of the battle fought near Bitche yesterday. The battle was fought between the French right, under Marshal McMahon, and the Prussian left, under the Crown Prince, commanding in person, near Woerthe au Saur, a village of France, in the department of Bas Rhine, twelve miles southwest of Weissenburg, and ended in the total defeat of Marshal McMahon, with the greater part of his army. The French were routed and daiven back in the fortress of Bitche, in the department of Moselle.

The Prussians captured thirty cannon, four mitrailleuse and four thousand prisoners. The battle commenced at nine o'clock in the morning, and the engagement was fiercely contested till four o'clock in the afternoon.

Before evicuating the town of Saarbruck the French army applied the torch and fired the town.

THE OCEAN RACE.—The English Yacht the Victor.—The feat is accomplished! Anxious minds are at rest. Betting is at an end. The British yacht Cambria has won the great international ocean yacht race, having completed the distance from Daunt's Rock, on the coast of Ireland, to Sandy Hook lightship, in twenty two days, five hours, seventeen minutes and fifteen seconds, defeating her opponent, the Dauntless, by one hour and four minutes.

There is no parallel contest or record. The surprise is universal that the contestants should have reached the goal so near each other. But it is now over, and the excitement which has raged is succeeded by general wonderment. For the time of year the passage is regarded as a rapid one, and the victorious yacht deserves all her well earned laurels. The reception of the Cambria was, as it should be, warm hearted, generous and thoroughly appreciative.

As a triumph for the science of navigation the race has never been equalled, and when it is considered that two vessels leave a point of departure at the same moment, bound for the same destination, nearly three thousand miles distant, one taking an extreme northerly passage, the other cursing to the south, and both arrive at the goal within so short a period of each other, the triumph is made manifest.

The examinations will commence at 9 o'clock, a. m.

Persons unknown to the Superintendent must produce satisfactory evidence of good moral character.

It is expected that boards of directors will generally be present at the examinations to make their selections of teachers. Citizens are cordially invited to attend.

Teachers will be examined in the districts in which they design to teach. Private examinations will be dispensed with. All professional certificates expired by law on the first of last June. Directors are particularly cautioned not to employ any teacher who has not a valid certificate.

D. F. Tussey, Co. Supt.

Alexandria, August 9, 1870.

White Man's Party.

The farmers, mechanics and laboring men of Huntingdon county will hold a Convention in the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on Tuesday, the 30th day of August, at 1 o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of nominating a county ticket.

The Convention will be composed of two delegates from each township, borough, ward and election district in the county, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the following offices:—Associate Judge, County Commissioner, Director of the Poor, Jury Commissioner and County Auditor.

It is to be hoped that those who are opposed to the corrupt wire-working politicians in this county, and believing that white men are competent to rule, will lend their aid in selecting good, honest and reliable white men as candidates for the above offices.

By order of the Committee.

L Elmer Edwards,
Chairman.

Huntingdon, Aug. 4, 1870. td

Dastardly Outrage.—On Saturday night last, between eight and nine o'clock, as our townsman B. L. Hewit, Esq., was returning from the country in his sulky, and when opposite the residence of C. G. Lindsey, a short distance below town, he was met by two men, one of whom, when within a few feet of him, hurled a stone at him, which struck him on the shoulder, bruising and injuring him severely and causing him much pain.

Shortly afterward another buggy coming up the pike was assaulted in the same manner, doubtless by the same ruffians—one of the occupants (Miss Robinson, daughter of Joseph Robinson,) being hit in the face with a stone and so severely cut and bruised that a physician had to be called to attend to her injuries.—Hollidaysburg Register.

☞ The Phrenological Journal and Packard's Monthly for August comes to hand somewhat later than usual, on account of a fire which occurred in the building where it is put in type. Its contents, however, are as interesting and as valuable as ever. One or two articles from the long list are all we have space to note at this time,—"Madame Demorest," the well known modeste, is portrayed and sketched; "Sanity vs Insanity," treats of the conduct of Insane Asylums; "Physical Education," is learnedly and instructively discussed; "Personals" and "Matrimonials" receive a severe but merited handling by one of our well known writers. We can not but commend this August number to the reading community. Price 30 cents, $3 a yr. Published by S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York.

☞ Let none of our readers forget the fact that we have a first-class Bakery and Candy Manufactory in this place, which is rapidly filling a large number of orders for Candies and Syrups, that come from far and near.—Dealers are beginning to find out that they can do as well by sending their orders to Luke Reilly, as they can by sending them to the city, paying a heavy freight, and getting no better quality of Candy; and they are wise.

☞ We take pleasure in referring our farming community to the firm of McLanahan, Stone & Isett, in Hollidaysburg, manufacturers of Agricultural Implements, &c. No farmer or dealer who has had business with them, we are sure, will regret having done, as they are gentlemen of the best type, and their machinery is warranted to give general satisfaction.

☞ Jurors and witnesses will take notice that the Trial List for 2d week of August Court has been continued, and they need not attend.

M. M. McNeil,
Prothonotary.

Attention Soldiers.—Soldiers who were in the old Pennsylvania Reserve organizations are entitled to State pay and should send their address to E. H Kinsloe, Claim Agent, Bellefonte, Pa. He will attend to all cases promptly.

Present.—Last week the Methodist church in this place was made the recipient of a very beautiful silver communion service, the gift of Miss Jennie McCulloch.

Tall Oats.—Mr. David Isenberg raised on his farm near Mill Creek, a stalk of Norway oats two feet long. and containing three hundred and twenty-four grains.

☞ Mrs. Margaret Bennett, on Railroad street, cleans and mends clothing, &c., and would be very thankful for a share of patronage.

Wanted immediately—a girl to do housework. Apply with recommendations, to Mrs. James A. Brown,

Pittsburgh Female College.—As the time is at hand when parents are commencing to look around for suitable schools for their daughters for the coming school year, we cannot render them a better service than by calling their attention to the facilities and advantages afforded by the Pittsburgh Female College. It has all the requisites of a really first-class institution. The buildings are large, airy, well lighted and ventilated, and fitted up in really elegant style. Every private room, and hall, and school-room is covered with carpets and mattings. The Faculty—twenty-two in number—has been selected with great care, and every teacher has had from five to twenty years' experience in teaching. More than one-half the number board in the College, occupy places at the same tables with the pupils, and aid the President in the constant oversight of their health, manners and morals. The literary course is divided into Primary, Preparatory and Collegiate departments. There are also special departments for all the ornamental branches, such as Vocal and Instrumental Music, Drawing and Painsing, Needlework, Wax-work, &c., with special teachers for each. The course of study is full, and the methods of teaching thorough, as is abundantly evidenced each year by the examinations, which are conducted more or less by teachers not connected with the College. Added to all this, the constant aim of those in charge of the college is to make it a Christian Home for those committed to their care. Most heartily do we commend it to all who have daughters to educate, and who desire for them true culture of both brain and heart. In buildings, Faculty, patronage, and all the facilities for imparting a thorough, solid and ornamental education it is emphatically the Queen College of the West. Send to the President, Rev. I. C. Pershing, D. D., for a catalogue.—The Fall term will commence Sept. 6.

Heroic Act.—It is not often we are called upon to record a more noble and unselfish act of heroism than was witnessed on the Branch Road, on Thursday morning last. Just previous to the return of the Branch train, the wife of Jos. G. W. Burns, who resides about midway between this place and Altoona, close along the line of the road, went across the road to a neighbor's. Unknown to Mrs. B. or any member of the family, she was followed by a little daughter about two years old. Just as the child was crawling across the track, the train came thundering along at a high rate of speed. Owing to a sharp curve in the road at this point, the engineer, Mr J. R. Stewart—who, by the way, is always on the look out—did not observe the child until the engine had approached within about sixty yards of it.—With rare presence of mind Mr. Stewart immediately shut off steam, reversed engine and blew down brakes, and then with lightning speed went over the engine and down on the point of the pilot or cow-catcher, and just as the pilot was in the act of striking the child's legs, with a sweep of his "good right arm" lifted and threw it off the track. As soon as the train could be stopped the child was picked up unharmed. The gratitude of the parents to Mr. Stewart, who at the risk of his own life had saved that of their darling, can better be imagined than described. All honor to the engineer of the Branch for his noble, manly daring.—Hollidaysburg Standard.

Tuscarora Academy, Academia, Pa.—More than three thousand young men have gone forth from this School, so trained in all the branches of scholarship, as to enable many of them to reflect honor upon themselves, and the Institution at which they received their education.

The large experience and earnestness of the Principals in the cause of education, will contribute much to the successful training of youth entrusted to their care.

Terms $200. Send for a circular.

The distance of the Bedford and Bridgeport Railroad is only 21 miles through a comparatively level country, requiring therefore very few expensive cuts and bridges. The grading of the road will cost about $100,000, while the cost of ballasting, iron, cross-ties, and laying of track is set down at about $200,000, making a total of $300,000 necessary to put the road in running order. The people of Bedford have subscribed about $70,000, while $50,000 is promised from Pittsburgh.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore. says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville. Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XXV.

MORE ABOUT APPLE TREES.

In my opinion, Apple-trees, in most orchards, are planted too far apart and allowed to grow taller and spread their limbs more widely than is profitable. I judge that a pruner or picker should be able to reach the topmost twig of any tree with a ten foot pole, and that no limb should be allowed to extend more than eight feet from the trunk whence it springs. Our Autumnal Equinox occurs before our apples are generally ripe for harvest, and, finding our best trees bending under a heavy burden of fruit, its fierce gales are apt to make bad work with trees as well as apples. The best tree I had, with several others, was thus ruined by an equinoctial tempest a few years since. Barren trees escape unharmed, while those heavily laden with large fruit are wrenched and twisted into fragments. And, even apart from this peril, a hundred weight of fruit at or near the extremity of limbs which extend ten or twelve feet horizontally from the trunk, tax and strain a tree more than four times the weight growing within four or five feet of the trunk, and on limbs that maintain a semi-erect position. I diffidently suggest, therefore, that no apple-tree be allowed to exceed fifteen feet in height, nor to send a limb more than eight feet from its trunk, and that trees be set (diamond fashion) twenty-four feet apart each way, instead of thirty-two, as some of mine were. I judge that the larger number of trees (72 per acre) will produce more fruit in the average than the larger but fewer trees grown on squares two by two rods to each, that they will thrive and bear longer, and that not one will be destroyed or seriously harmed by winds where a dozen would if allowed to grow as high and spread as far as they could.

Every apple-tree should be pruned each year of its life: that is, it should be carefully examined with intent to prune if that be found necessary. It should be pruned with a careful eye to giving it the proper shape, which, from the point where it first forks upward, should be that of a tea-cup, very nearly. I have seen young trees so malformed that they could never bear fruit enough to render them profitable And the pruning should be so carefully, judiciously done from the outset that no wood two years old should be cut away. With old, malformed, diseased, worm-eaten, decaying trees, the best must be done that can be; but he who, pruning a tree that he set and has hitherto cared for, finds himself obliged to cut off a limb thicker than his thumb, may justly suspect himself of lacking a mastery of the art of fruit-growing.

Sprouts from the root of an apple tree remind me of children who habitually play truant or are kept out of school. They not merely can never come to any good but they are a nuisance to the neighborhood and bring reproach on the community.

The apple-grower should never forget that every producer needs to be fed in proportion to his product. If a cow gives twenty quarts of milk per day, she needs more grass or other food than if she gave but two quarts; and an acre of orchard that yields a hundred barrels of apples per annum needs something given to the soil to balance the draft made upon it. Nature offers us good bargaining, but she does not trust and will not be cheated. When she offers a bushel of Corn for a bushel of dirty Salt, Shell, Lime, or Wood Ashes, a load of Hay for a load of Muck, we ought not to stint the measure, but pay her demand ungrudgingly.

And now a last word on Insects.

My township (Newcastle) is said to have formerly grown more apples per annum than any other township in the United States; its apples trees are still as numerous as ever, but their product has fallen off deplorably. I estimate the average yield of the last three years at less than a bushel per annum for each full-grown tree; I think a majority of the trees have not borne a bushel each in all these three years. Unseasonable frosts, storms, &c., have borne the blame of this barrenness—perhaps justly, if we consider only immediate cause—but the caterpillar and other vermin are, in my view, our more potent, though remoter, afflictions. Not less than four times within the last sixteen years have our trees been covered with nests and worms; and I have seen whole orchards stripped of nearly every leaf till they were as bare (of everything but caterpillars) in July as they should have been in December.—After the scourge had passed the trees reclad themselves with leaves; but they grew old under that visitation faster in one year than they would have done in ten of healthful fruit-bearing; and they are now prematurely gray and moss-covered because of the terrible infliction.

I lay down the general proposition that no man who harbors caterpillars has any moral right to Apples—that each grower should be required to make his choice between them. Slovenly farmers say, "O there are so many that I cannot kill 'half so fast as they multiply." Then, I say cut down and burn up the trees you can best spare, until you have no more left than you can keep clear of worms.

If it were the law of the land that whoever allowed caterpillars to nest and breed in his fruit-trees should pay a heavy fine for each nest, we should soon be comparatively clear of the scourges. In the absence of such salutory regulation, only to see his orchard again and again invaded and ravaged by the pests hatched and harbored by his careless neighbors. He thus pays and repays the penalty of others' negligence and misdoing until, discouraged and demoralized, he abandons the hopeless struggle, and thence forth repels the enemy from a few favorite trees around his dwelling, and surrenders his orchard to its fate. Thus bad laws (or no laws) are constantly making bad farmers. The birds that would help us to make head against our insect foes are slaughtered by reckless boys — many of them big enough to know better—and our perils and losses from enemies who would be contemptible if their numbers did not render them formidable increase from year to year. We must change all this; and the first requisite of our situation is a firm alliance of the entire farming and fruit growing interest defensive as to birds, offensive toward their destroyers, and toward the vermin multiplied and shielded by the ruthless massacre of our feathered friends.

ADDRESS

TO THE

NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED

FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE

CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpitation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick scum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and dagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. Those will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the use of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., and one size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by
